Daily Report

Summary

- The positive developments in the USA-China trade talks have benefited stock markets in Europe and America
- Turkey launched an attack on Kurdish forces in northern Syria
- Brexit uncertainty persists
- Germany published pale exports data

Europe's stock markets closed higher on Wednesday, with the FTSE100 adding 0.3%, the Stoxx600 gaining 0.4%, the CAC40 advancing 0.8%, and the DAX growing by 1%. One reason for the benign sentiment was a favourable development in the USA-China trade talks – China is still ready to discuss a partial deal, and is prepared to increase the purchase of US farm products. The tech and car manufacturing sectors were the winners of the day. Amid the mounting Brexit uncertainty, Britain's stock market was the weakest performer in Europe.

Despite the supportive external environment, the BUX inched up 0.1% only. Magyar Telekom surged 1.1%, OTP gained 1%, Mol upped 0.4%, while Richter shed 0.4%.

On the other side of the Atlantic, the Dow upped 0.7%, the S&P500 closed 0.9% higher, and the NASDAQ100 surged 1.1% in Wednesday's optimistic trading.

Turkey launched an attack on Kurdish forces in northern Syria. European countries and Egypt have condemned the Turkish military intervention. Previously, US President Donald Trump suggested that he would support president Erdogan in this operation and he withdrew US troops from the area. Later, as Republican voices joined the cascade of criticism, Donald Trump called the Turkish offensive a 'bad idea' and threatened to obliterate Turkey's economy. The Turkish lira weakened 0.9% against the US dollar in Wednesday's session.

With few weeks to go until the 31 October deadline when the United Kingdom's is to leave the European Union in the current state of affairs, the fog surrounding Brexit is far from clearing. The EU said that Boris Johnson's proposals were unacceptable, and Britain should make further concessions for a successful agreement. The EU's chief negotiator Michel Barnier said it would be 'very difficult' to reach a departure deal. Meanwhile Prime Minister Boris Johnson faces opposition within his own government as a number of ministers are threatening to resign, fearing that he was indeed prepared for a disorderly withdrawal from the EU.

Speaking at an event in Denver yesterday, chairman Jerome Powell said the Fed would expand its balance sheet soon, owing to the liquidity problems on the interbank market. Meanwhile the minutes of the Fed's September meeting indicated that Fed Open Market Committee members are increasingly divided about the direction of monetary policy. The FOMC voted 7:3 to lower interest rates by 25 basis points to 1.75-2.00%, but some central bankers made the case for a bigger, 50-basis-point cut.

Government bond yields rose across the board yesterday. The US 10Y bond yields upped five basis points, and that of Germany rose by four points.

The euro regained 0.1% from the US dollar, and firmed 0.2% against the pound. The EUR/HUF edged 0.1% higher, trading above the 334 mark again.

Germany released yet another disappointing figure: its exports shrank by 1.8% MoM in August, missing the forecast of 1% drop.

Hungary's external trade surplus hit EUR 37 mn, wrong-footing analysts' consensus of EUR 50 mn deficit. Exports have expanded by 2.6%, while imports have risen by 1.3% since the same period of the previous year.

Important labour market data are due out in the USA today. Any development in Brexit is also worth checking: the EU's chief negotiator for Brexit, Michel Barnier will meet the UK's Secretary of State for Exiting the European Union, Steve Barclay.

This publication contains generic presentation of information and knowledge, thus it does not take into account the individual clients' unique and special interests, financial condition, or their ability and willingness to take risks. Therefore please contact our staff or contact your banking consultant for advice before you make an investment decision. The assessment and the consideration of the individual circumstances is provided by the suitability and appropriateness tests that assess clients' financial knowledge, experience, risk-taking abilities, as well as the examination of the target market.
- 5. Before making an informed decision to invest and to use the services, please carefully read through all documents, including the documentation, prospectus, regulations, terms and conditions, announcements and key information documents for that product/service, and carefully consider the subject, the risk, the fees and costs of your investment, the possibility of any loss, and seek information about the tax regulations regarding the product and the investment. The prices of financial instruments and securities are changing, outrights sales are realized at then current market prices, which may involve losses.  Investments in financial instruments carry a certain degree of risk, which may affect the effectiveness of the investment decision, and investors may not receive the whole amount they expected the investment to yield in their investment targets; they may not preserve even the invested amount, therefore the invested capital might even decrease, be wholly lost, or even lead to additional payment obligation.
- 7. Trading with leveraged products (such as foreign exchange contracts) or with shares and indices that have underlying products carries a considerable amount of risk, and these products are not suitable for all investors. Trading with leveraged products carries the risk of losing all capital, and it may incur losses that exceed the amount invested.
- 8. The figures and information described herein refer to yields or changes in the past. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future yields, changes, or performance. The changes on money and capital markets, the fluctuation of prices, the development of investments and their yields are influenced by the combined effect of multiple factors; one important factor of them is the change in investors' expectations. The development of prices, the future yield of financial assets, indices or indicators, the examination of their changes, trends, and future performance is based on estimations and forecasts, which forecasts do not allow reliable conclusions to be drawn about the future moves of prices, real future yields, changes, or performance. For each product and service, please assess their tax accounting implications, and other tax consequences, taking into account that they cannot be precisely assessed without knowing the effective tax regulations or the client's individual circumstances; and these legislative provisions as well as the circumstances may change over time.
