Daily Report

Summary

- Stock markets closed in the red on Friday, owing to disappointing macro data.
- The OPEC+ meeting on reducing oil production has been postponed.
- US non-farm payrolls fell by 701,000.
- The dollar strengthened against the euro.

Europe's stock indices ended in the red on Friday: France's CAC40 weakened by 1.6%, Britain's FTSE100 dropped 1.2%, the Stoxx600 lost 1%, and the DAX closed 0.5% lower. Friday's unfavourable macro data, which make the economic fallout from the pandemic increasingly obvious, added to pessimism. The banking sector, whose sector index slid 2.2%, was one of the biggest losers of the day. In contrast, the energy sector index rallied 9%, benefiting from a rebound in oil prices.

In the sour global trading sentiment, Hungary's BUX fell 1% as MOL plunged 5.8%, Richter slid 2%, Magyar Telekom stagnated, while OTP surged 3.2%.

In the USA, the Dow slipped 1.7%, the S&P500 dropped by 1.5%, and the Nasdaq100 shed 1.4%. The worse-than-expected labour market data was one reason for the drop. In individual names, Walt Disney's shares fell 3.5% on news that it puts many US employees on unpaid leave. In contrast, Tesla revved up 8% after announcing that the delivery of the Model Y electric car fares even better than planned.

In Asia, Japan's Nikkei225 sky-rocketed 4.4% this morning.

Switzerland is to double the size of the emergency loan programme, to CHF 40 billion. This brings the total economic aid package to CHF 62 billion, or 9% of the country's GDP.

The dollar's continued strengthening drove the EUR/USD 0.4% lower. The forint's weakening sent the EUR/HUF 1% higher, above 366.

Crude oil prices rose steeply on Friday, with WTI soaring 11.9% and Brent skyrocketing 13.9%. But OPEC and non-member states are to postpone their extraordinary meeting on oil supply cuts as there are still serious differences between the stances of Russia and Saudi Arabia. The meeting is unlikely to take place before Thursday. Accordingly, crude prices fell 3.5% in this morning's trading.

US non-farm payrolls shrank by 701,000 in March, whereas analysts' consensus predicted a decline of 100,000. This was the first negative figure since September 2010. The number of jobs has not fallen so sharply since March 2009. However, the crisis' real impact on the labour market will first appear in the April figure; analysts project a 20 million plunge in the number of jobs by then.

In the United States, the number of covid-19 infections passed the 300,000 mark over the weekend, and the disease has already claimed more than 9,600 lives. The USA may face the worst period of the epidemic this week. Meanwhile, British Prime Minister Boris Johnson has been hospitalized after having been tested positive for coronavirus.

Today's important releases are the Sentix investor sentiment index on the eurozone's economy. Later in the week, any reports on oil production cuts are also worth checking.
