4 RIGHTS OF THE CLIENTS AND OTHER STAKEHOLDERS

4.1 Data Subjects' right of access

The Controller shall inform data subjects as requested if it processes their personal data and if so it shall provide the Data Subject with a copy of the personal data processed and the following information:

- (a) the purpose of data processing;
- (b) the categories of personal data processed;
- (c) the categories of addressees to whom the controller has disclosed or will disclose the data subject's personal data;
- (d) the expected duration of personal data storage or, if this is impossible, the criteria used for determining such duration;
- (e) information about the data subject's right to request the controller to rectify, erase its personal data or to restrict their processing and to object to the processing of such personal data;

- (f) by virtue of Article 4.7 of the Guide, the right to lodge a complaint with the Data Protection Authority.

If the Data Subject requests the above information in multiple copies, the Controller may charge a reasonable fee in proportion to the administrative costs of preparing extra copies.

If the Data Subject's right of access laid down in this Article has an adverse effect on any third party rights and freedoms, especially business secrets or intellectual properties, the Controller may dismiss the Data Subject's application to the required and proportionate extent.

Before fulfilling the application, the Controller may ask the Data Subject to specify the same and to provide a detailed description of the requested information and data processing activities.

4.2 Right to rectification

The Controller shall rectify or supplement any inaccurate or deficient data of the Data Subject upon the Data Subject's application without undue delay.

After fulfilling the Data Subject's application for enforcing its right to rectification, the Controller shall immediately inform the recipients of the Data Subject's personal data unless this is impossible or requires undue efforts from the Controller.

4.3 Right to erasure (“right to be forgotten”)

The Data Subject may apply for the erasure of their personal data without undue delay in the following cases:

- a) their personal data are no longer necessary for the purpose for which they were collected or otherwise processed by the Controller;
- b) the Data Subject withdraws their consent (in Article 2.4.3.) unless there are other legal grounds for the controller's proposed data processing;
- c) the Data Subject objects to data processing under Article 4.6 of the Guide and there is no legitimate reason for data processing;
- d) the Data Subject objects to data processing under Article 4.6 of the Guide;
- e) the Controller has unlawfully processed the Data Subject's personal data; or
- f) the Controller must erase the personal data to comply with an obligation required by a Hungarian or European Union law.

After fulfilling the Data Subject's application for enforcing its right to erasure, the Controller shall immediately inform the recipients of the Data Subject's personal data unless this is impossible or requires undue efforts from the Controller.

The Controller shall not be required to erase any personal data if their processing is necessary:

- (a) for exercising the right of freedom of expression and information;
- (b) for compliance with the controller's personal data processing obligation under a Hungarian or European Union law;
- (c) for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the controller;

- (d) on the grounds of public interest in the area of public health;
- (e) for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes, provided that the data subject's exercise of their right to be forgotten is likely to render impossible or seriously impair the achievement of the objectives of that processing;
- (f) for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims.

4.4 Right to restriction of processing

The Data Subject shall have the right to obtain from the Controller restriction of processing where one of the following applies:

- g) the accuracy of the personal data is contested by the data subject, for a period enabling the controller to verify the accuracy of the personal data;
- h) the processing is unlawful and the Data Subject opposes the erasure of the personal data and requests the restriction of their use instead;
- i) the Controller no longer needs the personal data for the purposes of the processing, but they are required by the Data Subject for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims; or
- j) the Data Subject has objected to processing pursuant to Article 4.6 of this Guide pending the verification whether the legitimate grounds of the Controller override those of the Data Subject.

Where processing has been restricted under Article 1, such personal data shall, with the exception of storage, only be processed with the data subject's consent or for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims or for the protection of the rights of another natural or legal person or for reasons of important public interest of the Union or of a Member State.

A Data Subject who has obtained restriction of processing pursuant to Article 4.4 shall be informed by the Controller before the restriction of processing is lifted.

The Controller shall communicate any rectification or erasure of personal data or restriction of processing to each recipient to whom the personal data have been disclosed, unless this proves impossible or involves disproportionate effort.

4.5 Right to data portability

The Data Subject shall have the right to receive the personal data concerning him or her, controlled by the Controller on any contractual legal grounds laid down in Article 2.4.1 of this Guide, in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format.

Where technically feasible, the data subject should have the right to have the personal data transmitted directly from one controller to another stated in the Data Subject's application. The right to data portability under this Article shall not create an obligation for the Controllers to adopt or maintain processing systems which are technically compatible.

If the Data Subject's right to data portability has an adverse effect on third party rights and freedoms, especially their business secrets or intellectual property, the Controller shall have the right to dismiss the Data Subject's application to the required extent.

4.6 Right to object

The data subject shall have the right to object, on grounds relating to his or her particular situation, at any time to processing of personal data concerning him or her under Article 2.4.4 of this Guide, based on the Fund Manager's legitimate interest.

The controller shall no longer process the personal data unless the controller demonstrates compelling legitimate grounds for the processing which override the interests, rights and freedoms of the data subject or for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims.

If the data subject objects to processing for direct marketing purposes, the personal data shall no longer be processed for such purposes.

4.7 Right to seek judicial remedy

Where a Data Subject considers that his or her rights under the data protection laws in effect from time to time are infringed, he or she shall have the right to file a complaint with the National Data Protection and Freedom of Information Authority.

The National Data Protection and Freedom of Information Authority's contact information:

The Data Subject may file a civil action against the Controller for unlawful data processing.

The Data Subject may file such action with the regional court with competence at his or her residence (for the contact data of regional courts visit <http://birosag.hu/torvenyszekek>).

Furthermore, the Data Subject shall have the right to mandate a not-for-profit body, organisation or association which is constituted in accordance with the law of Hungary, has statutory objectives which are in the public interest and is active in the field of the protection of personal data to lodge a complaint on his or her behalf with a supervisory authority, exercise the right to a judicial remedy on behalf of Data Subjects or, if provided for in Member State law, exercise the right to receive compensation on behalf of Data Subjects.

4.8 Miscellaneous provisions

The Controller hereby informs the Data subject that if the Controller has reasonable doubts concerning the identity of the natural person making the request referred to Articles 4.1–4.6 of this Guide, the controller may request the provision of additional information necessary to confirm the identity of the Data Subject.

If there is evidence that the Controller cannot identify the Data Subject, the Controller shall have the right to dismiss the Data Subject's application.
